Methodology

Study Design

To conduct the 2024 JSO Community Survey, a phone interview style was used. The population of study is adult residents of Duval County (not including the Beaches Communities), aged 18 or older. The total number of completed telephone surveys collected was 600. Telephone data collection took place between May 6 to May 21, 2024. The breakdown of completed responses on a landline phone to a cell phone was 16.4% to 83.6%. Not only were citizens from all Patrol Districts called, but also from all 34 zip codes in Duval County (See Appendix 2).

Telephone data collection was done by a national research group based in Richmond, Virginia, and which provided all the listed addresses and telephone numbers used in the sampling frame. They use an Orion telephony system as well as their own internal dialer interface to randomly dial through the target list. Data collected by telephone operators is collected in an SaaS system built to professionally deliver survey instruments and act as a data collection platform. Raw data is downloaded and analyzed by SPSS. For individuals answering on a landline telephone, the interviewer asked the first qualified respondent to participate. Cell phone sample respondents were selected by being the first qualified participant to answer the phone.

To ensure a representative sample was being collected, the county was stratified using the 6 JSO patrol districts, which are broken down into sectors and sub-sectors so that officers can easily navigate and find neighborhoods within the community. The Margin of Error for the entire sample is +/- 4%. Due to the wide variation in the population of the Patrol Districts (they are drawn based on call volume and internal JSO efficiency not for political representation purposes), in addition to a representative sample of the entire JSO service area, we additionally oversampled the Patrol Districts in order to have a minimum of 125 responses per Patrol District (see Table 1). It is important to note that, due to smaller sample sizes, the observations made within the Patrol Districts have an undetermined margin of error, indicating a greater degree of uncertainty toward the true population than that of the entire sample.

County Demographic Profile

Duval County is located in northeast Florida, and is bordered by St. Johns, Clay, Bradford, Baker, and Nassau County. The county totals 762.6 square miles. According to the U.S. Census Bureau's American Community Survey (ACS) 2023, Duval County's 18 years of age and older population was approximately 800,948 individuals. The approximate racial/ethnic breakdown for the total Duval County population of 1,030,822 individuals is as follows: 49.7% white non-Hispanic, 30.9% black non-Hispanic, 12.6% Hispanic/Latino origin, and 5.2% Asian non-Hispanic.

Project Background

In 2016, The Jacksonville Sheriff's Office (JSO) began conducting a bi-annual Community Survey of Jacksonville residents, measuring community attitudes and opinions toward public safety and law enforcement in Jacksonville, Florida. The study has been conducted in 2016, 2018, 2021, 2022 and 2024. Project years were adjusted due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Dr. Austin has been conducting polls for over 30 years, 28 in his own firm. As an Adjunct Professor of Political Science at the University of Florida since 2001, Dr. Austin has taught polling as part of his graduate seminars as well as part of his undergraduate classes and specifically in Politics and Public Opinion.

Executive Summary

The survey design contained three major areas:

- Job Approval/Performance
- How Citizens Consume News Media
- Demographic Data on survey Respondents

In Part I, we sought feedback from the public along several lines, looking at various aspects of how the public views and perceives JSO, its job performance in several areas and citizen interaction with JSO in several critical areas. Citizens were asked to agree or disagree with a statement then were asked if this was strongly agree or strongly disagree. This is the five-point scale and tells us direction (agree or disagree) and intensity (strongly or not). This methodology allows a more nuanced analysis.

In Part II, we sought feedback from the public about how they consume news media and receive information about JSO. In a world with a rapidly changing media environment and rapidly changing viewer habits, this can be and is quite instructive.

In Part III, we sought demographic information from participants to ensure that we got a representative sample of the citizens of Duval County.

The subsequent sections will go into more detail on all parts of the 2024 JSO Community Survey and the Appendix at the end contains all of the raw data. Here is a summary of the most salient take-away points.

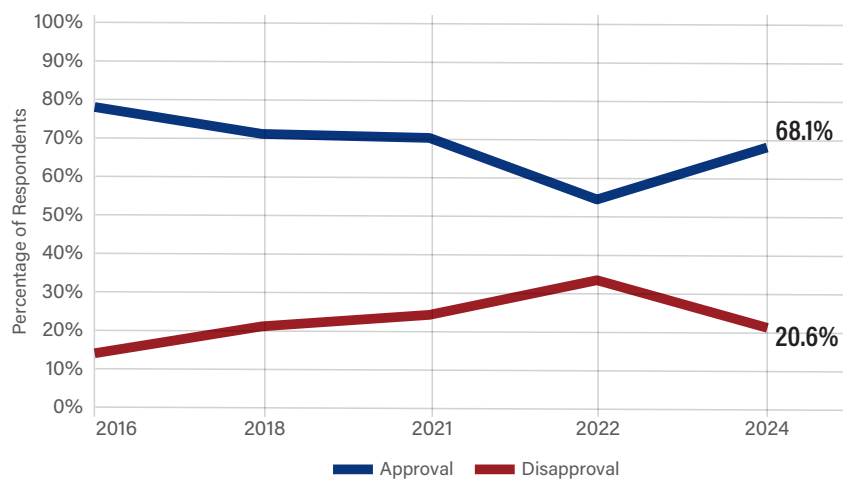

Though it varies by Patrol District (See Patrol District Findings Section below), overall and by wide margins, citizens believe JSO is handling its job well (68%), they feel safe in their neighborhood (89%), the areas of town they frequent (81%) and think, overall, Jacksonville is a safe place to live (68%). A majority believes JSO is responsible with taxpayer money (52%), that JSO needs more officers to meet the city's needs (50%), and that more funding is needed (62%).

By a wide margin, citizens who have had personal interactions with JSO personnel found them to be courteous and competent (69%). When asked what public safety issue concerned them the most, the clear leader were two issues that are largely related – gun violence and illegal drug use (55% total; 37.4% and 17.4%, respectively). The other issue which stood out, both in the closed-ended question and in the open-ended question was Traffic Safety. All areas of town and all Patrol Districts had significant mention of this (speeding, reckless driving, etc.).

Citizens were asked whether they believed JSO had gotten better or worse in the areas of Accountability, Transparency and Community Engagement. By majorities (56%, 56% and 54% respectively), citizens believed JSO has gotten better in these three key areas, leaving only 16%, 16% and 19% of respondents, respectively, saying those areas had gotten worse. This too varies by Patrol District (See Patrol District Findings Section below).

Finally, the JSO Community Survey of Jacksonville residents has been conducted in 2016, 2018, 2021, 2022 and 2024. Respondents were asked whether JSO was handling its job well or not. Figure 1 shows that over the years of the JSO Community Survey that number has trended downward. However, in 2024, that trend has ended and by a margin of 68-20%, citizens think JSO is handling its job well. This is up 24% from 2022 and is hopefully on the way back to its historic higher levels.

Job Approval

Though it varies by Patrol District (See Patrol District Section below), overall and by wide margins, citizens believe JSO is handling its job well (68%), they feel safe in their neighborhood (89%), the areas of town they frequent (81%) and think, overall, Jacksonville is a safe place to live (68%).

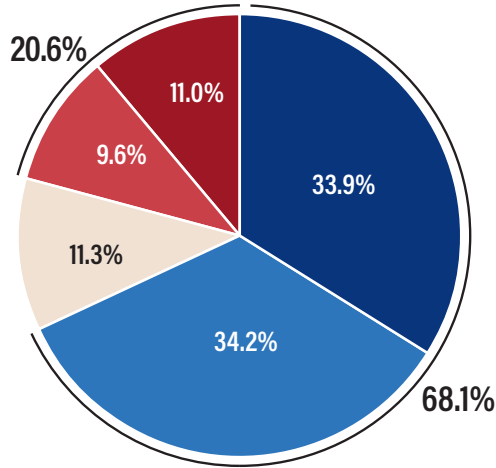

Figure 3. Breaking this down, we see that overall by a margin of 68-20%, citizens think JSO is handling its job well. Looking more deeply, we can see that among those with strong feelings, those strongly agreeing numbered 33.9% while those strongly disagreeing numbered 11%, which is a 3:1 favorability ratio.

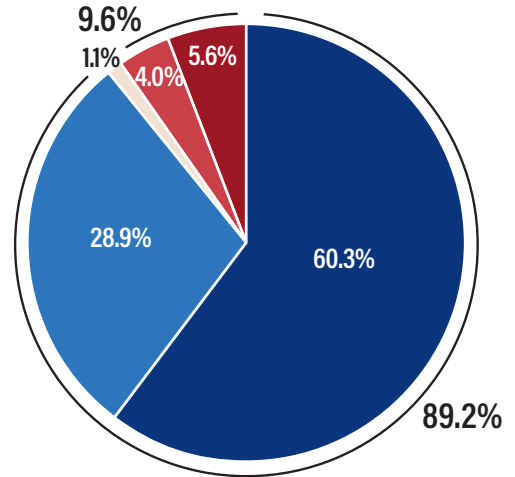

Figure 4. By an even wider margin, citizens feel safe in their own neighborhood by 89%-10%, and the intensity level is 60.3%-5.6%, an astounding 11:1 favorability ratio.

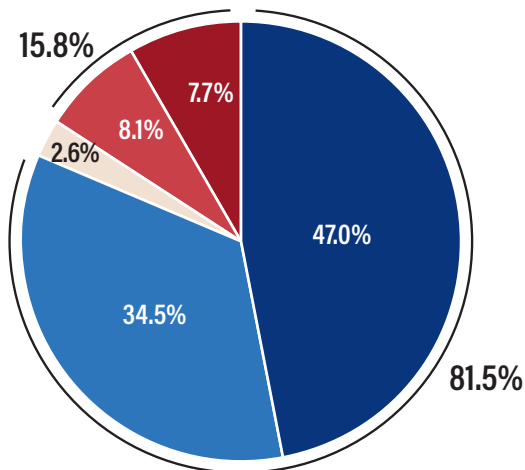

Figure 5. When thinking about the areas they go most often (for work or leisure), citizens feel safe by a margin of 81-16%, with an intensity level of 47-8%, a 6:1 favorability ratio.

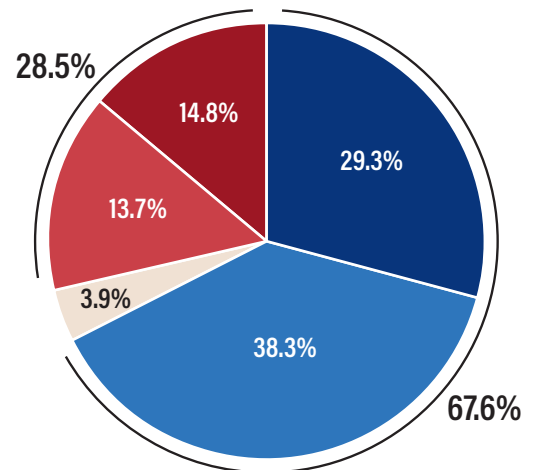

Figure 6. Overall, by a margin of 68-28%, people think Jacksonville is a safe place to live. The intensity level on this, however, is only 29.3-14.8%, a 2:1 favorability ratio.

Internal Investigations

The next four questions dealt with more complicated issues and thus we saw our Unsure/Refused segment of respondents rise dramatically to well over 20%. Nevertheless, JSO still receives high marks and over 50% for each question, but the intensity ratio is far less than the previous section.

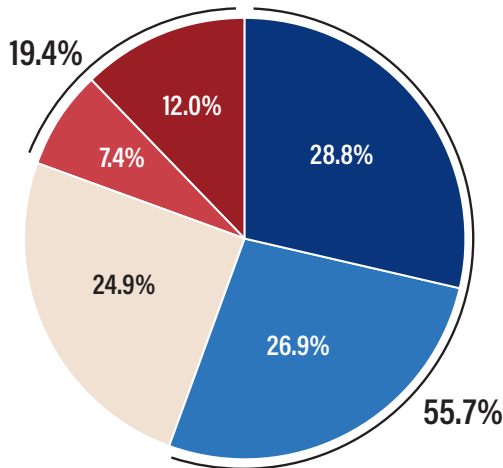

Figure 7. When asked if JSO is good at handling complex investigations, 56% agree and 19% disagree, a 3:1 favorability ratio. However, when we break these out, 28.8% strongly agree while 12% strongly disagree, yielding a slightly more than 2:1 favorability ratio.

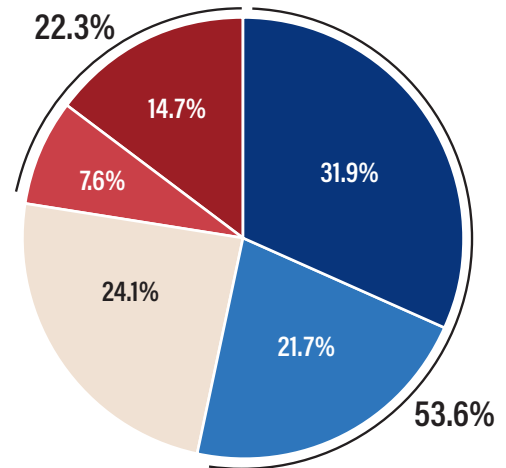

Figure 8. Likewise when asked if JSO does a good job investigating officer involved shootings, we see 54% agree with 22% disagreeing, a 2.5:1 favorability ratio. But when comparing strongly agree to strongly disagree, it's 32-15% or just slightly over a 2:1 ratio.

Figure 9: JSO does a good job of following up on allegations of police misconduct with competent administrative, and if necessary, criminal investigations

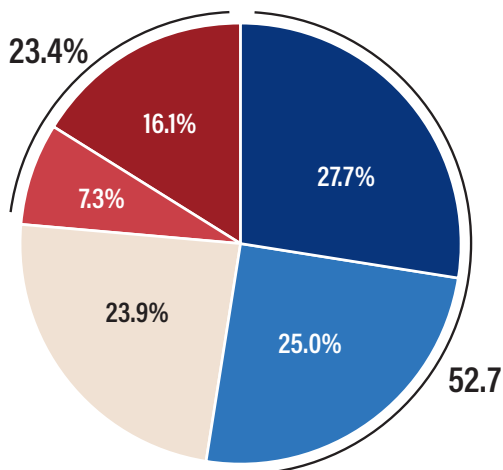

Figure 9. Moving to whether JSO does a good job investigating police misconduct, again we see about a 2.5:1 favorability ratio with 53-23% agreeing. But again we see a drop when comparing those who strongly agree or disagree, 28-16% or a 1.7:1 favorability ratio.

Figure 10: JSO does a good job reporting back to the community about its findings on investigations of possible police misconduct

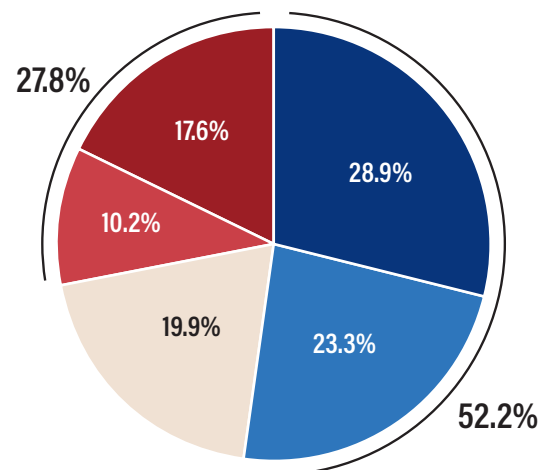

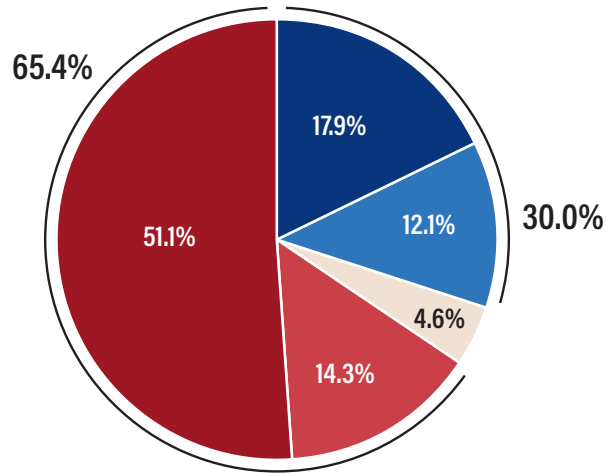

Figure 10. Finally, when citizens were asked if JSO did a good job of reporting back to the community investigative findings regarding possible police misconduct, we still saw that by a slim majority of 52-28%, respondents agreed that JSO did a good job, but this was just under a 2:1 favorability ratio, but among those who agreed or disagreed strongly, it was about 29-18%, or a 1.6:1 favorability ratio.

Fear of Being the Victim of Police Brutality

The next question asked respondents whether being the victim of police brutality was something they personally worried about. By a margin of 65-30%, citizens disagree with this because a large majority don't fear being the victim of police brutality. Despite this slim margin and being only slightly over a 2:1 margin, when we look at those feeling strongly about it, we see by a margin of 51-18%, or almost 3:1, a majority of citizens strongly disagree with the notion that being the victim of police brutality was something they personally worried about.

Use of Resources

The next set of questions dealt with the citizens thoughts on resource usage. A majority believe that JSO needs more officers to meet the city's needs (50%), JSO is responsible with taxpayer money (52%), and that more funding is needed (62%).

Figure 12: JSO has enough officers to meet the city's needs

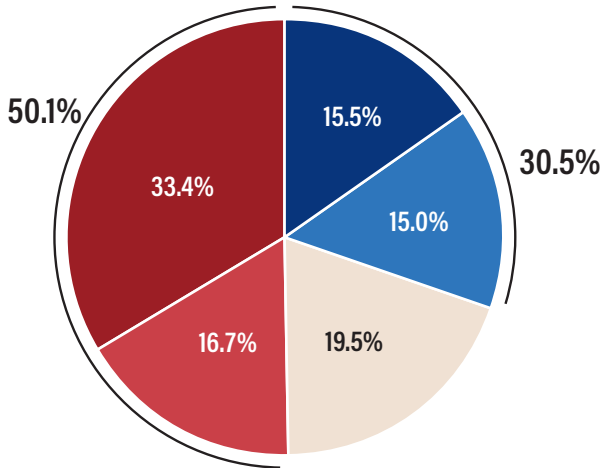

Figure 12. Looking at whether JSO has enough officers to meet the city's needs, only 30% agree, 50% disagree and 19% are unsure. When looking at those who strongly disagree that there are enough officers versus those who agree there are enough, we see a margin of 33-15% or a better than 2:1 ratio who think there are not enough officers.

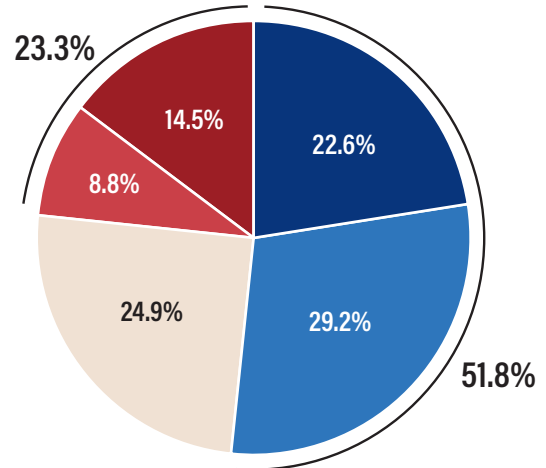

Figure 13. Moving to whether JSO is responsible with taxpayer money and allocates its resources well, by a margin of 52-23%, respondents agree (over 2:1 favorability ratio), but the intensity is only 22-14% (only a 1.5:1 favorability ratio.) Over 24% are unsure.

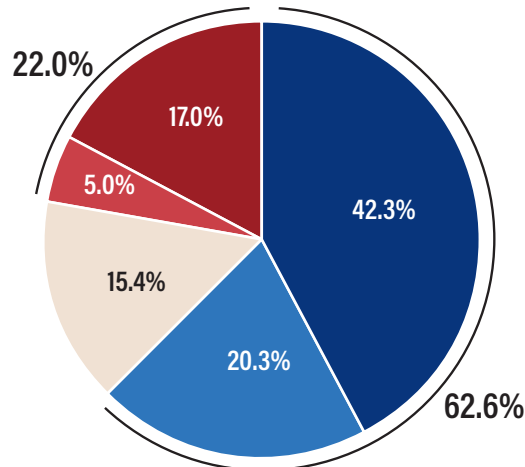

Figure 14. When it comes to whether JSO needs more funding, citizens agree by a margin of 62-22%, just under a 3:1 favorability ratio. But among those who strongly agree or disagree, we see a margin of 42-17%, a 2.5:1 favorability ratio.

Job Performance: Courteous and Competent

Respondents were asked whether, in their personal encounters with JSO personnel, they found them to be courteous and competent. While 14% reported having no interaction with the police, by a wide margin, those who did found JSO personnel to be courteous and competent. Respondents were also asked what public safety issue concerned them the most. Though this varies by Patrol District (See Patrol District Section below), in all areas of town and all Patrol Districts, gun violence is the number one concern; other issues ranked second in different districts.

Figure 15: Thinking about encounters you have had with JSO personnel, did you find them to be courteous and competent

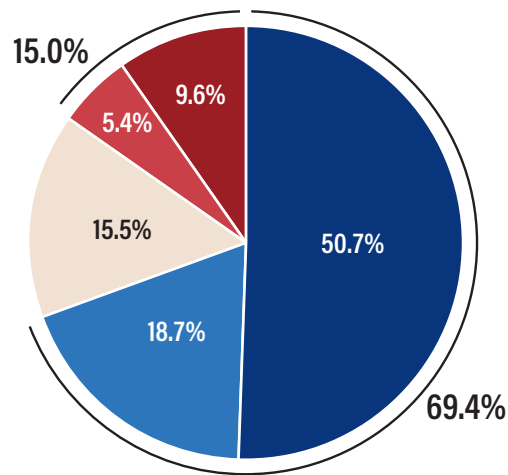

Figure 15: By a wide margin, citizens who have had personal interactions with JSO personnel found them to be courteous and competent by a margin of 69-15%, better than a 4:1 favorability ratio. Among those who strongly agree or strongly disagree, the numbers are even better with a margin of 51-10%, a 5:1 favorability ratio.

Based on their response to the previous question, respondents were asked to clarify how the officers were courteous and competent or discourteous and incompetent. It is important to keep in mind the pie chart and favorability ratios above and that there were significantly more courteous and competent responses and relatively few discourteous responses. Below are the chief areas of respondent comments.

How have you found their behaviors to be courteous and competent?

- Respectful/follow rule/professional
- Quick response time
- Friendly/Nice

How have you found their behaviors to be discourteous or incompetent?

- Discourteous/Disrespectful
- Judgmental/Condescending
- Police inaction/Late response

Public Safety Concerns

Figure 16: What public safety issue concerns you most, the one issue JSO should allocate more resources to?

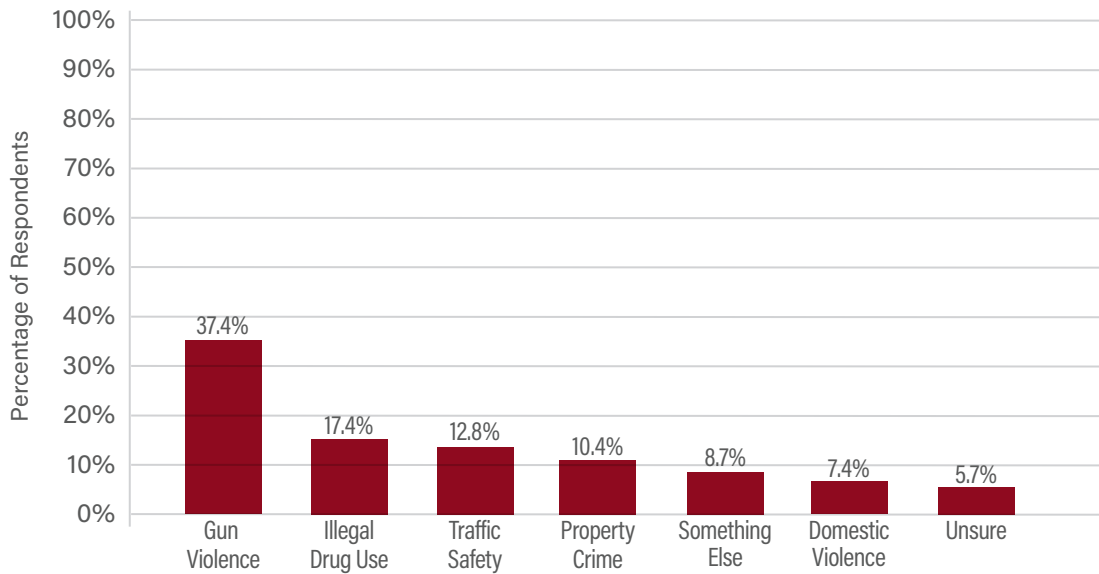

Figure 16: When asked what public safety issue concerned them the most, the clear leader were two issues that are largely related – gun violence and illegal drug use (55% total; 37.4% and 17.4%, respectively). The other issue which stood out, both in the closed-ended question and in the open-ended question was Traffic Safety (See Verbatim Reply Section below). All areas of town and all Patrol Districts had significant mention of speeding, reckless driving, and the like (See Patrol District Section below).

Accountability, Transparency and Community Engagement

New questions were asked this year due to JSO making the areas of Accountability, Transparency and Community Engagement a new priority of the Agency

Figure 17: Do you believe JSO has gotten better in the area of accountability compared to years past

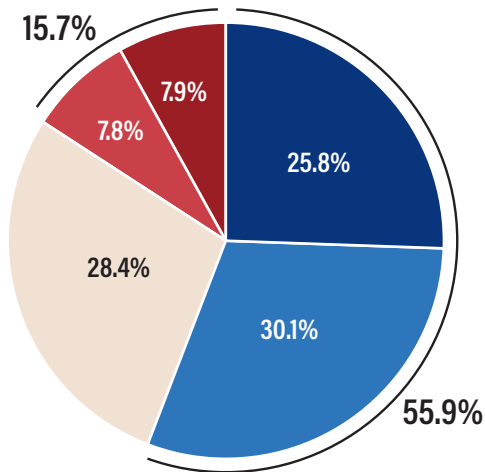

Figure 18: Do you believe JSO has gotten better in the area of transparency compared to years past

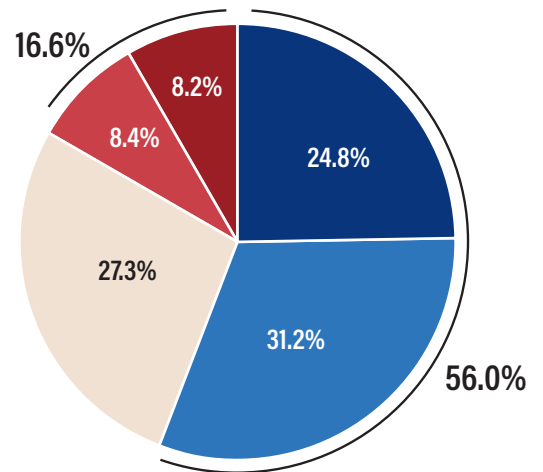

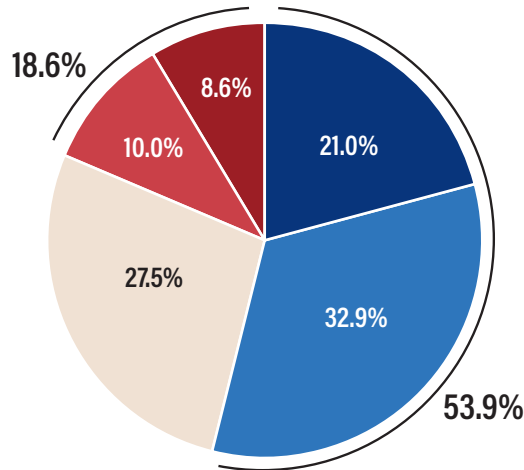

Figure 19: Do you believe JSO has done better with community engagement compared to years past

Figures 17, 18 and 19. Finally, citizens were asked whether they believed JSO had gotten better or worse in the areas of Accountability, Transparency and Community Engagement. By majorities, 56-16%, 56-16% and 54-19%, respectively, citizens believed JSO has gotten better in these three key areas; the first two have a favorability ratio of 3.5:1 and the third is just below a 3:1 favorability ratio. When we look at the intensity, we see 26-8%, 25-8% and 21-9%, respectively, the first two a 3:1 favorability ratio and the third a 2.6:1 favorability ratio. It's noteworthy that for each question, over 25% of citizens were Unsure, leaving only 16%, 16% and 19% of respondents saying those areas had gotten worse. This too varies by Patrol District (See Patrol District Section below).

How Citizens Consume News Media

We sought feedback from the public about how they consume news media and receive information about JSO. In a world with a rapidly changing media environment and rapidly changing viewer habits, this can be and is quite instructive. We asked 2 types of questions: how citizens currently consume news media and how they may follow JSO on various social media platforms. Most of the districts watch the local news on television multiple times per week. Most also get their news from the internet. This could point to a positive relationship when pursuing Community Engagement. Almost nobody gets their news from print anymore.

Figure 20: Respondents were asked how often and how they consume local news – TV, printed newspaper or Internet. 46% of respondents get local news from TV and from the Internet; this has come at the expense of a printed newspaper.

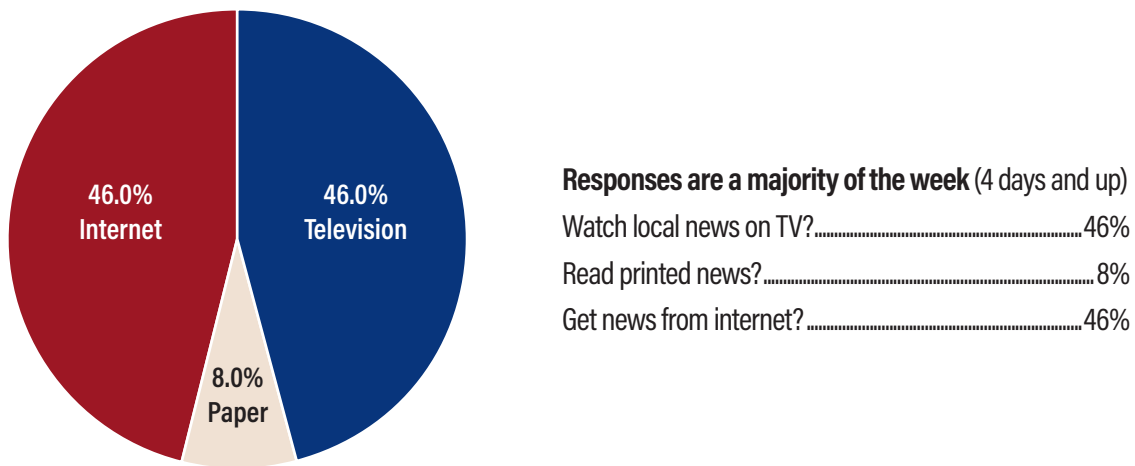

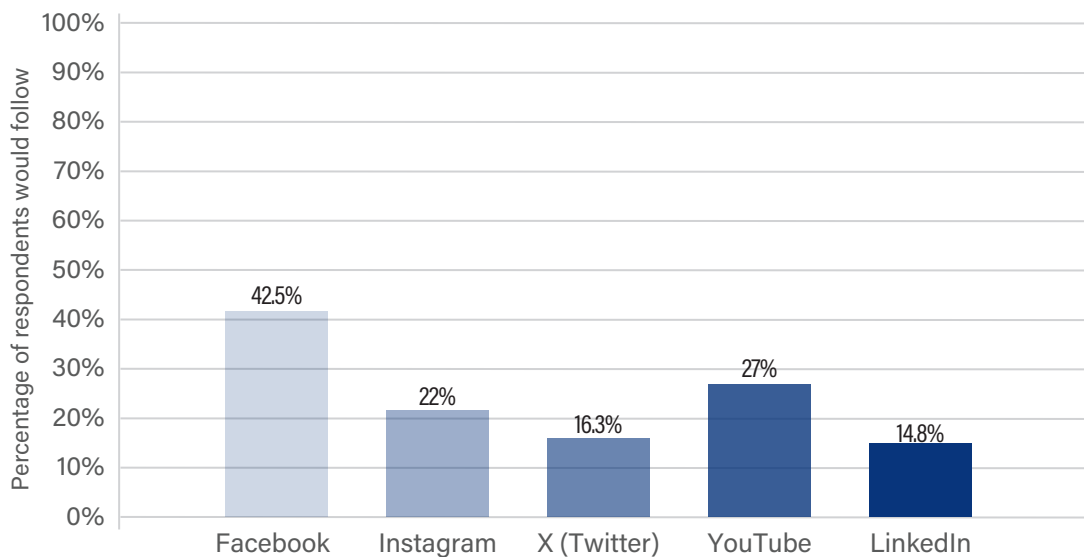

Figure 21: Respondents were asked if they currently or would follow JSO on Facebook, Instagram, X (formerly Twitter) or LinkedIn

Year Over Year Comparisons

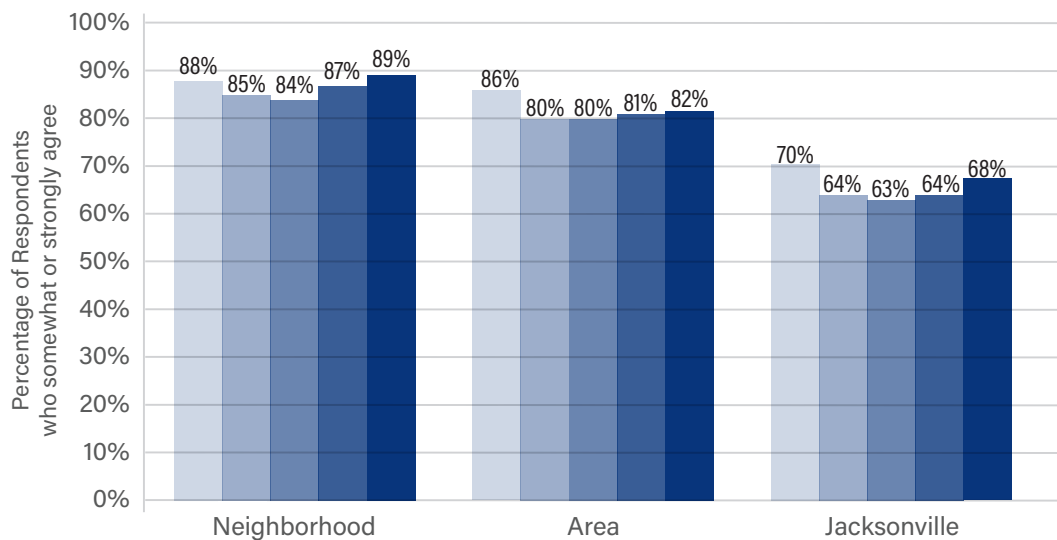

In 2016, The Jacksonville Sheriff's Office (JSO) began conducting a bi-annual Community Survey of Jacksonville residents, measuring community attitudes and opinions toward public safety and law enforcement in Jacksonville, Florida. The study has been conducted in 2016, 2018, 2021, 2022 and 2024. Project years were adjusted due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The following charts show year over year comparisons of the findings. As each Community Survey is slightly different, some comparisons are for all years and newer questions only reflect the years they were asked.

Respondents were asked whether JSO was handling its job well or not. We can see that over the years of the JSO Community Survey that number has trended downward. However, in 2024, that trend has ended and by a margin of 68-20%, citizens think JSO is handling its job well. This is up 24% from 2022 and is hopefully on the way back to its historic higher levels.

Respondents were asked if that they feel safe in their own neighborhoods, the areas they visit most frequently, and whether they feel Jacksonville, overall, is a safe place to live. Figure 22 shows the overall responses for each area, broken down by the years of the JSO Community Survey. In all three categories, the percentage of respondents who reported feeling safe has remained relatively stable since 2016, with a very slight increase in 2024. Respondents seem to feel safest in their own neighborhoods, with 89% saying they strongly or somewhat agree, up slightly from 87% in 2022. Respondents also feel safe in the areas they frequent, remaining at 82%. Despite the feelings of safety within their own neighborhoods and the areas they visit, notably fewer respondents feel that Jacksonville, overall, is a safe place to live, with 68% saying they strongly or somewhat agree, up from 64% in 2022.

Respondents were asked whether in their encounters with JSO they found them to be courteous and competent. Figure 23 displays the overall responses to this question over the years of the JSO Community Survey. As shown in the chart, the percentage of respondents who strongly or somewhat agree was 79 and 78% in 2016 and 2018, respectively, and then post-Covid has dropped off considerably to 71, 68 and 70% in 2021, 2022 and 2024, respectively.

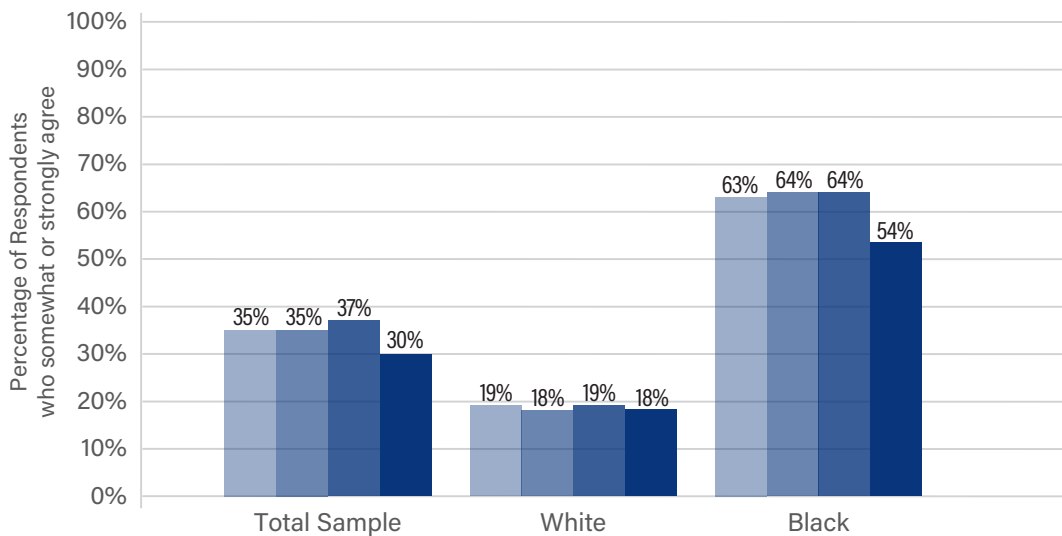

Respondents were asked whether they agree or disagree that JSO does a good job in four different areas: handling complex investigations, investigating officer-involved shootings, following up on allegations of police misconduct with competent administrative and/or criminal investigations, and reporting back to the community about its findings on investigations of possible police misconduct.

Displays the percentage of respondents who strongly or somewhat agreed with each statement over the years of the JSO Community Survey. For all four questions, the percentage of respondents who agree with the statements has fluctuated up and down each year of the survey with a pretty big drop in 2022 but a bounce-back in 2024, with every category over 50% and all in about the same range.

Respondents were asked whether being the victim of police brutality was something that they personally worried about. Figure 26 displays the results over the years 2018, 2021, 2022 and 2024 for the entire sample and then by race. There was very little change in the first three years but an almost 20% drop in 2024 from 37 to 30%. The percentage who said they personally worry about being the victim of police brutality is the highest among Black respondents, and remained steady in 2018, 2021 and 2022 but dropped over 15% in 2024 to 54%. The percentage of White respondents who worry about police brutality has remained steady at 18-19%, the lowest among racial groups. The number of Hispanic and Asian respondents were not statistically significant enough to make any assessment.

Respondents were also asked a series of questions about JSO funding and resource allocation. Figure 27 shows the percentage of respondents who strongly or somewhat agree with each statement, broken down by year. When asked if they agree that JSO needs more funding, 63% of respondents indicated agreement in 2024, an uptick from 58% in 2022. After a steady increase between 2016 and 2021, the percentage of respondents who indicated JSO has enough officers to meet the city's needs dropped slightly in 2022 to 38% and dramatically to 30% in 2024. The percentage of respondents who believe JSO is responsible with taxpayer money bounced back to 52% after dropping to 44% in 2022.

Patrol Districts Findings

PATROL DISTRICT PROFILES

District 1: District 1 encompasses Downtown Jacksonville and its direct North and the San Marco area.

District 2: District 2 encompasses East of the Saint Johns River towards beaches and Jacksonville University.

District 3: District 3 encompasses Mandarin, South Duval, UNF, and the Town Center.

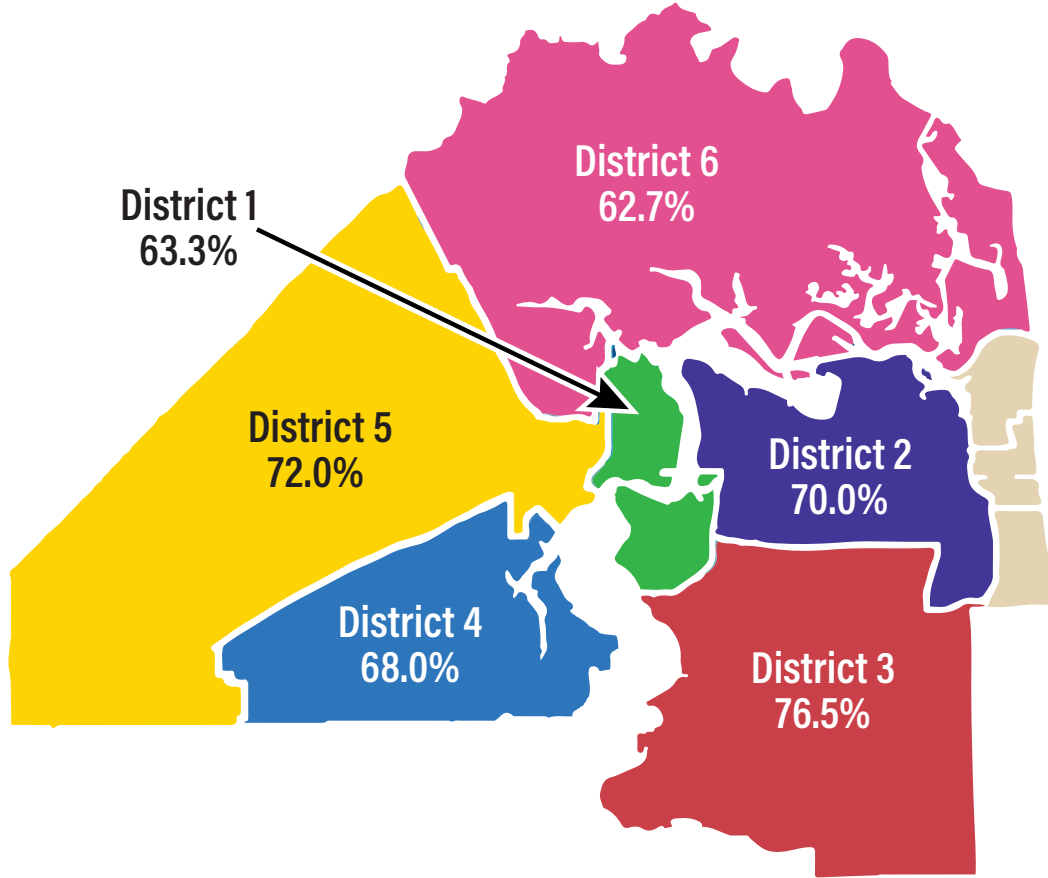

District 4: District 4 encompasses the Naval Air Station, west of the river and is part of South Duval.

District 5: District 5 encompasses West Duval and west of 95.

District 6: District 6 encompasses North Duval, Moncrief, and the airport.

APPROVAL BY DISTRICT

District 1 is on the lower side for overall safety in Jacksonville with 63.3% reporting that JSO is handling its job well which is the second lowest of the districts. District 2 is one of the higher for approval with 70% reporting that JSO is handling its job well. District 3 scores in the highest for approval with 76.5% reported JSO is handling its job well. District 4 had generally middle approval of their community compared to the other districts 68%. District 5 has middle of the range approval of JSO with 72% believing JSO is doing a good job. District 6 is the lowest for approval of JSO and of safety in their community. Only 62.7% believe JSO is doing a good job.

Note: Percentages above refers to the percentage of respondents who strongly agree or somewhat agree.

FEEL SAFE IN NEIGHBORHOOD

District 1 reported 85.9% of respondents feel safe in their neighborhood which is the lowest of the poll. District 2 reported 89.4% of respondents feel safe in their neighborhood. District 3 reported 91.2% of respondents feel reported safe in their neighborhood. District 4 reported 86.4% of respondents feel safe in their neighborhood. District 5 reported 87.2% of respondents feel safe in their neighborhood. District 6 reported 88.1% of respondents feel safe in their neighborhood.

Note: Percentages above refers to the percentage of respondents who strongly agree or somewhat agree.

COURTEOUS AND COMPETENT

District 1 believes JSO was the least courteous when interacting with them with only 54.7% reporting they had a positive interaction. District 2 saw 69.4% of the responses showing a positive interaction with officers. In District 3, 72.8% stated the JSO was courteous when they interacted with them. In District 4, they believe officers were generally courteous during interactions with 71.2% reporting positively. District 5 saw 64.0% of people believing JSO was courteous when they interacted with them which is fairly middle range. District 6 had only 58.2% of interactions with officers were reported as positive in this poll.

Note: Percentages above refers to the percentage of respondents who strongly agree or somewhat agree.

Note: Percentages above refers to the percentage of respondents who strongly agree or somewhat agree.

COMPLEX INVESTIGATIONS

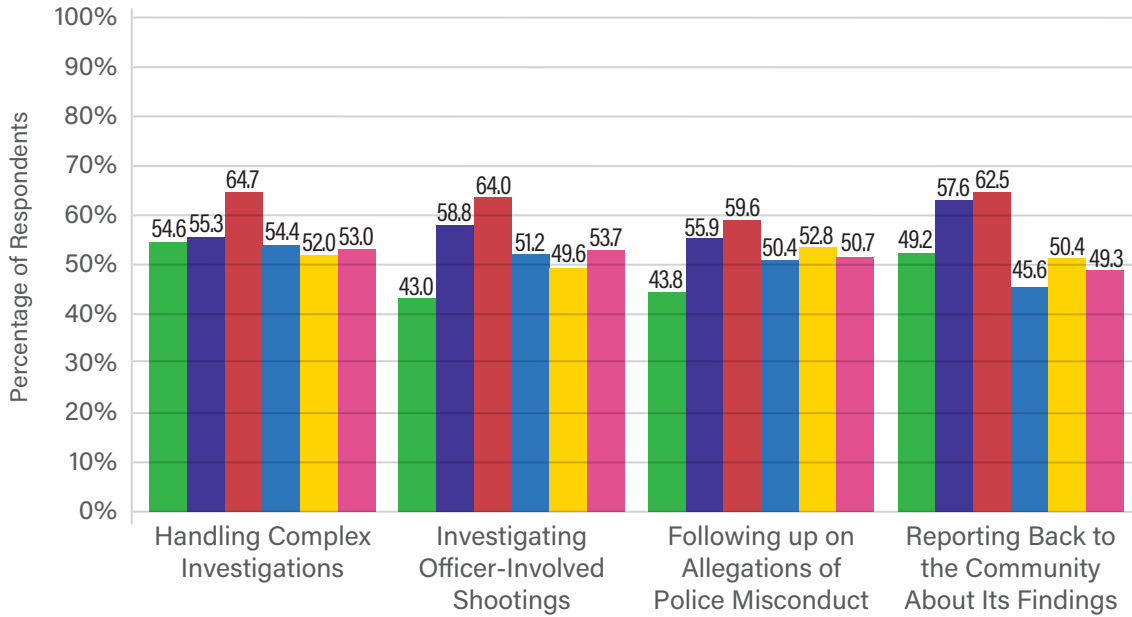

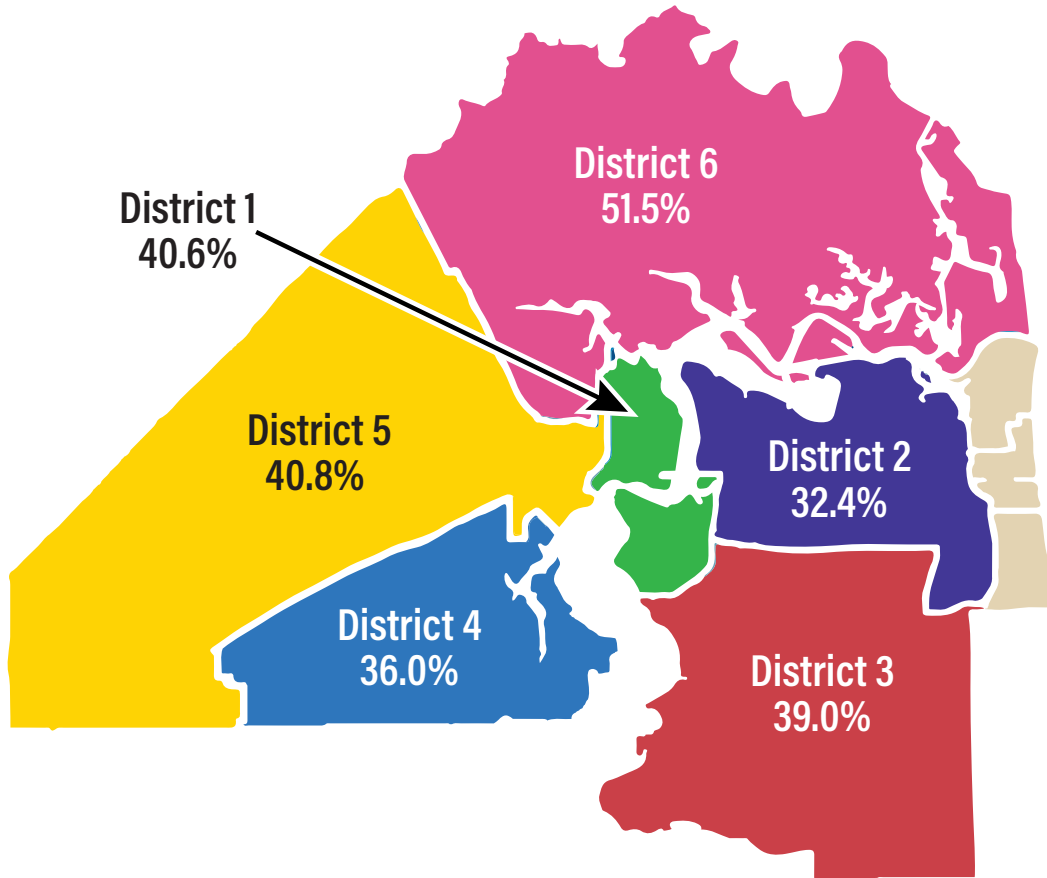

Figure 33 shows the percentage of respondents who agree with each of these statements, broken down by patrol district. When asked whether JSO does a good job handling complex investigations, every district had over 50% with District 3 reporting the highest at 64.7%. Regarding handling officer-involved shootings four districts had over 50% while districts one and five reported less. Agreement that JSO does a good job following up on allegations of police misconduct was generally around a majority and only District 1 reporting lowest at 43.8%. For reporting back to the community about findings into police misconduct half of the districts reported less than a majority with only district 2, 3, and 5 reporting higher than 50%.

District 1 reports in tandem with the other districts that gun violence as their largest concern at 40.6%. In District 2, 32.4% reported gun violence as their major concern which was the largest group. District 3 rated gun violence is the most concerning issue with 39.0% reporting it as their largest concern. District 4 also rated gun violence as the most pressing issue at 36.0%. District 5 rated gun violence as their most pressing concern with a plurality of 40.8%. District 6 most concerning issue is gun violence with a majority of 51.5% saying it is.

Note: Percentages above refers to the percentage of respondents who strongly agree or somewhat agree.

All districts show favorable ratings of accountability, transparency, and community engagement with district 3 being the highest for each category. District 1 is the least likely to believe JSO has improved accountability, transparency, and community engagement. Surprisingly, District 5 had varying beliefs on what aspects of the JSO office improved in over the past few years. Every other district is within a relative range above 50% and within the margin of error.

Note: Percentages above refers to the percentage of respondents who strongly agree or somewhat agree.
